

Susanna Hancock is an Asian-American composer whose music explores color, process, and acoustic phenomena. Susanna's compositions have been performed by wildUp, JACK Quartet, and Metropolis Ensemble, as well as members of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra, and St. Louis Symphony, among others.

Susanna currently lives in Cincinnati, OH and serves as Visiting Faculty of Music Composition at Miami University and Composition Faculty at Northern Kentucky University. Susanna holds a Master of Music in Theory & Composition degree from New York University, and Bachelor of Composition and Bassoon Performance degrees from the University of South Florida. | susannahancockmusic.com

(98 words)